HOW TO UPSKILL YOUR WORKFORCE WITHOUT HIRING ANYONE NEW

Upskilling your employees has many benefits to both you and your employees. Upskilling is when employees are taught new skills, it has become increasingly important for a number of reasons.

So why should you upskill? Upskilling boosts your worker satisfaction rates and as a result future-proof your business. The pandemic has hit us all hard, and as a result unemployment rates are extremely high. Gaining new skills and having strong staff will allow you to prosper in even the most difficult of times.

The technological advances we have made as a society has created a technological shift in many companies. This means that there are new job roles that did not previously exist and skills that are becoming a vital part to a smooth running business. The current demand for people who have these skills are on a rise. So training your staff and allowing them to gain these skills will allow your staff and your company to continue to advance.

At EEV Training we help you upskill your workforce by providing training and apprenticeships, get in touch with us today.

NOTICE BOARD

Get Paid To Hire?

Ends on 31st January 2022 - £3,000 financial help for recruiting new apprentices

The 'new apprentice hire' incentive expires at the end of January but there's still time to recruit your new employees onto apprenticeships. We can help you with this too- from taking a job description to shortlisting applications and arranging interviews. In addition to this, there's still the £1,000 financial incentive for putting a 16-18 year old (or 19-24 year old with an EHCP) onto an apprenticeship programme. They could be a new recruit or an employee that you would like to upskill or reskill in a new role.
